Barnes & Rawles,

vs.

Vaughan et. als.

The undersigned special commissioner was required by a decree herein of April 20th 1883 to collect the second and last bond and distribute said collection and that of a former bond and begs now to report (I had thought that this report was long since made but cannot find it in the papers and therefore presume it was not filed) that he collected said bonds and interest on the first for one year and the interest on the second and last for one year seven months and twenty days from November 10th 1881 to May 30th 1882 which makes the collection of principal two hundred and sixteen dollars and interest thirteen dollars and eighty six cents or principal and interest $229.86 from which five dollars is to be deducted for drawing deed as allowed by said decree of April 1883 leaving a balance in hand for distribution of $224.86 which was distributed as appears by vouchers herewith filed. Your commissioner says that he has paid costs on said suit since days of sale on the 10th day of November 1881 which amounts to considerable by reason of th different accounts of debts taken in the course of the proceedings; the vouchers for these costs are not filed, because scattered over your commissioner's receipt files for ten years and on this point he will call on Mr. Young as clerk and commissioner in the presence of the court. Your commissioner knows he has paid out more than ever came into his hands and therefore prays that this suit be dismissed.

Very Respectfully,
